Last revised August 24, 2026

INTRODUCTION

This Privacy Policy(“Policy”) is meant to help you understand how Copyleaks (together with its affiliated companies – “Copyleaks”, “we”, “our” or “us”) collects, uses, shares, and protects personal information with respect to your use of this website (the “Site”), the services and content made available on the Site, the API and any other service provided by Copyleaks (together the “Services”). Our Services may entail collection and processing of personal information for the purposes set out below in this Policy.

We may process personal information:

of individuals who visit, browse and use our Services, such as the AI Detection and Plagiarism detection platform that is available on the Site, or by engaging and interacting with us through our contact page on the Site (“Visitors” and “Users” respectively). As a Visitor or a User, you may provide personal information directly while browsing and using the Site Services and we may collect personal information regarding your usage of the Site, as further explained in this Policy.

of our Enterprise Customers’ personnel who are authorized users who create an admin account in our platform Services in order to use the Service on behalf of the Enterprise Customer (“Account Admins”).

That is submitted to the Services by our Enterprise customers (“Enterprise Customers”), which we process on behalf of our Enterprise Customers (“Customer Data”) in our capacity as a “data processor” (or equivalent term under applicable data protection laws) in accordance with the instructions governed by commercial agreements and Data Processing Addenda we have in place with our Enterprise Customers. In certain cases, we will also process Enterprise Customer Data as an independent data controller, as further explained in this Privacy Policy below.

Whether you are a Visitor, User or Account Admin, you are not legally required to provide us with your personal information. If you do not wish to provide us with your personal information, please refrain from using our Services and visiting or interacting with our Site, but be aware that without providing certain information, we may be unable to provide you with some or all of our Services.

We reserve the right to change this Privacy Policy and we may update it from time to time, as we deem necessary and according to the changes in any applicable law. Should we make material changes to this Policy, we will notify you in an appropriate manner, such as posting a notice on the Site.

Our role as Data Controller and Data Processor

As per modern data protection laws, such as the EU GDPR and U.S. state data privacy, Copyleaks takes on the role of a controller in certain processing activities and a processor under other situations, to the extent that such laws and regulations apply to us. We are a controller when we determine the purposes and means of the processing, such as when we process Visitors', Users' and Account Admins' personal information. In our capacity as controller, we comply with applicable data protection laws, subject to any exemptions or thresholds that may apply to Copyleaks under those laws. On the other hand, we serve as a data processor or service provider (as such terms are defined in data protection laws), when we process personal information on behalf of a data controller or a business (as such terms are defined under data protection laws), i.e., when we process Enterprise Customer Data such as documents, texts, images , video, audio and any digital media or other content or type of file submitted by Enterprise Customers into the Services for scanning. We process such data on behalf of our Enterprise Customer (who is the controller of such data or the "business"), in accordance with its instructions which are governed by an agreement with the Enterprise Customer (usually referred to as a Data Processing Addendum) and other commercial provisions with such Customer in accordance with applicable data protection laws. Without derogating from the above, Copyleaks may also take on the role of a controller under certain data protection laws with regard to Enterprise Customer Data where applicable laws and the contractual engagement with Customers allow it to use the Customer Data, for purposes such as fraud detection, billing and improving Copyleaks' services including by training Copyleaks' models, as further explained in the Use of Personal Information chapter in this Policy.

Accordingly, this Privacy Policy describes Copyleaks's data processing practices as a data controller and does not apply to the processing of Enterprise Customer Data as data processor or service provider. If you have any questions or requests or to exercise your rights regarding your personal information collected by our Enterprise Customers and processed by us as a processor or service provider, please contact the respective Enterprise Customer and we will work with them to facilitate their fulfillment or their obligations under the data protection laws.

Security Practices

Copyleaks prides itself on taking data security and privacy very seriously. We make it our top priority to protect our clients, our system, and our infrastructure, using the highest security levels.

Data safety anxiety is common in today's digital age of massive data collection and minimal data security. Preventing unauthorized access to personal information is an essential issue throughout the world. Despite following cybersecurity best practices, the chances of a data breach are not impossible. To alleviate our users' fear regarding data security, Copyleaks provides military-grade 256-bit encryption with an SSL connection, ensuring your document content and account are always safe and secure.

It is not uncommon for hackers and unauthorized third parties to try stealing users' sensitive information online. That's why we've increased security and data protection measures to ensure our users' safety, as outlined in our law-abiding legal statement that states the terms and conditions of our website's services. This document provides a detailed list of the types of personal information stored on our website. Although we have cookies, these cannot perform any action on your mobile device or desktop. The cookies are kept only for improving your experience.

Our website's cookies do not transfer personal information from your device to any other system unless another system utilizes the cookies served by Copyleaks. Such third-party cookies are beyond the Copyleaks' control, and it depends upon the settings chosen by the user. You have the option to adjust the security settings of your computer/system and restrict the usage of such cookies by accessing your account on our site and modifying settings in your browser.

At Copyleaks, we work tirelessly to find and fix all security bugs to ensure the safety of your personal information. Our professional research and development team routinely scans our system for security issues. In addition, Copyleaks works closely with external security teams to execute Penetration Testing on our systems. We work round-the-clock to optimize our system, improve users' experience, and eliminate security concerns.

It is common to encounter concerns when signing up for online services, particularly those that fail to outline security policies. However, at Copyleaks, we prioritize our customers' data safety over anything else. Our Cloud-based software offers a unique feature rooted in security, allowing users to sign in from any device or web browser through a robust authentication process. To increase security practices on the users' end, we recommend our users use strong passwords combined with multi-factor authentication.

We do not allow users to sign in from devices ruled as suspicious. In addition, we alert users regarding unauthorized sign-ins and seek confirmation from the user about their authenticity. These are only some of the practices we follow at Copyleaks to enhance our services and maintain watertight security for all our customers.

This guide includes the main security overview of how Copyleaks is keeping data safe and secure.

System Architecture

Copyleaks' architecture is built for Cloud hosting. All of our product components are stored in the Cloud, maximizing data safety. Using the Cloud, Copyleaks can maintain flexibility in terms of load through our built-in security mechanism designed by Google Cloud top engineers.

Copyleaks' system was designed and built using Microservices architecture. Through this design, our service is continuously updated and optimized for our users. These updates include new features, security fixes, and bug fixes. Furthermore, all these infrastructure updates are completed with zero downtime. So, for all Copyleaks customers, this process is seamless and without any service disruptions.

Data Centers

Copyleaks data centers:

Copyleaks.com – located in the USA.

Copyleaks.eu – located in Germany.

Copyleaks infrastructure is hosted on Google Cloud and highly secure with physical protection 24/7/365. Read more about the Google Cloud Physical Protection Policy.

Product Security

The security measures of Copyleaks are aimed at checking systemic vulnerabilities and finding immediate and long-term solutions. Our professional team routinely scans and reviews access points to ensure data privacy at all levels. All our products are designed to enhance our users' experience while maximizing and preventing information loss. Being a cloud-based software application, Copyleaks helps you keep information safe in the Cloud backup zone. We ensure that your information is not used by any other systems/applications while using our platform until you have given explicit third-party permissions or enabled pop-ups from those sites separately.

Network Security

Copyleaks software/platform communicates through an internal company network. All of our components use this network. Copyleaks employees do not have access to this resource unless it is specifically needed to operate the system. Further, Copyleaks employees use an independent network structure, which connects the Employee and Internal networks through a secure VPN. Internal firewalls monitor employees' access and limit access as needed. All incidents reported are sent immediately to the data prevention/security team. All of the incoming connections to the internal network are secured. To get permission to access the internal network system, the requestor must prove his/her identity using an SSL client certificate. After proving the requestor's identity, the system enforces limitations on who can access each component. Unfamiliar connections from untrusted sources will be blocked and immediately reported for further investigation. The communication inside the internal network is secured using TLS v1.2 or newer. The security team continually updates and enhances these security protocols.

Data Security

Data safety is an integral part of Copyleaks security mechanisms. Data is encrypted both in transit and in rest. In rest, all of the saved data is encrypted. We use AES-256bits encryption to encrypt data. The key is managed by Google Cloud and is rotated automatically as needed. In transit, all of the data is transferred using only secure channels (HTTPs). The data backup procedure takes place daily. We store backed up data in our secure US-based data centers for at least four months, giving you peace of mind.

Data Collection Policy

We keep two copies of the customer's data. Each of our data centers are being backed up on a daily basis. The backup is being stored on a different Google Cloud datacenter, to ensure data safety in case of catastrophe.

Our data backup was designed to solve problems caused by the infrastructure (e.g. earthquake) and problems caused by mistakes of Copyleaks employees. In contrast, problems caused by users, e.g. user accidentally removing a file, is not part of this policy scope.

Applications Security

We make security our highest priority when writing our applications. To achieve a high-security level, we:

Routinely run vulnerability scans of our system components.

Update the security of our products regularly.

Use static code analyzers to detect problematic codes.

Anonymize any individual data while analyzing and ultimately improving our security standards.

Our applications are typically updated for any security threats every few days and at a very high rate. This high rate and frequency allow us to react fast to any change needed within our infrastructure. All this with zero downtime–which provides a seamless and uninterrupted service to the end-user.

Monitoring

Our system is continuously monitored round the clock, 24/7. This allows us to respond instantly as soon as we detect any downtime incident. We monitor our system every 5 minutes from 5 different regions around the world: Europe (Belgium), Asia Pacific (Singapore), South America (São Paulo), and the United States (Iowa, Oregon, Virginia). Global monitoring checks ensure optimized services to our customers around the world. This multi-location downtime reporting approach allows us to identify quickly if a specific geographic region has network problems. Like any other software system, system incidents may occur from time to time. To keep the Copyleaks user community informed of such occurrences, we maintain a separate website. Copyleaks users can stay up to date with the system downtimes, if any, on status.copyleaks.com. During our onboarding, we highly recommend our users to subscribe to live status updates on this website. As a matter of record, Copyleaks services run at an all-time average of 99.95% uptime, which is an impressive industry record.

Employee Practices

By default, Copyleaks agents do not have access to customers' submitted files. If the customer wants to allow Copyleaks agents to get access to his, he needs to explicitly allow this and limit the access by a time period. After granting access, some Copyleaks agents will have access to customers' scans.

We have an experienced team for handling user accounts. We do not take employee security lightly. Our professional experts work tirelessly to ensure Copyleaks' services run smoothly and are only allowed access to information pertaining to their responsibilities. Copyleaks primarily access users' data to improve their service and address any concerns. We ensure that all employees validate their identity through a strict security process before they gain access to our system. Employees have to mandatorily follow a 2-factor authentication process to eliminate wrongful access risks. Copyleaks also enforces a complex password policy, ensuring that passwords being used are made up of randomized characters, alphabets, and other elements. There are further checks, balances, and randomized audits made on company employees to eliminate data breach possibilities.

All employees do not have access to all the user data, and this has been done on purpose so that no user data can be readily made available to any employee. Employees are also required to sign into their web browsers using company emails, allowing the Copyleaks security team to monitor the employees' activities as per set protocols.

Compliance

The Copyleaks data centers collect and process the information that you submit while creating your account as per the Israeli Privacy Protection Law, 5741-1981. We comply with this protection of privacy law to safeguard the data of our users.

The EU data center (copyleaks.eu) is GDPR compliant.

PCI DSS – We do not store, process, and\or transmit cardholder data. Copyleaks use Stripe Inc to execute payment transactions.

Third-Party Vendors

Our services provide opportunities to connect with external services platforms. These third-party links do not fall under the ambit of the Copyleaks data security system. To protect your data, read the statement of the third-party sites before providing any personal information.

It is your responsibility to obtain your end users consent for the collection and storing of their conversation history.

12.4 The Generative AI GRC service is designed to improve your control over the use of specific text based generative AI tools. However, in the event that the generative AI tool(s) to which our extension is added undergo substantial changes, we may need to temporarily cease our services in order to make the necessary adjustments to ensure compatibility and optimal functionality. During this adjustment period, the service may not function as intended or may be temporarily unavailable. We will make reasonable efforts to minimize any disruptions and restore the service as soon as possible.

12.5 Copyleaks shall in no way be liable for any action taken by you or any third party on the basis of a result provided by the Generative AI GRC. You are solely responsible for any inquiry, investigation or other action taken by you on the basis of such result.

13. END USERS

13.1 Your Responsibility. You are responsible for obtaining all applicable consent and/or approval and/or authorizations from any individual and/or entity who is authorized by you to use the Services purchased by you under this Agreement ("End User"), as required to grant the Company the license set forth in this agreement.

13.2 End Users Compliance. You shall be solely responsible for ensuring that all your End Users are made aware of and comply with all the terms, restrictions and limitations set forth in these Terms. You shall take reasonable measures to monitor and enforce your End Users' compliance.

13.3 Copyleaks shall have no liability or responsibility to your End User for any matter arising out of or in connection with the Services provided under this Agreement.

13.4 It is hereby clarified that your End User's sole remedy is to cease using the Services or Site.

14. EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION CUSTOMERS

14.1 Applicability. This Section applies solely to Users that are accredited educational institutions ("Institution") that access or use the Services under an Order Form or Master Service Agreement for their own internal academic purposes ("Educational Institution Use"). In the event of a conflict between this Section and any other part of these Terms with respect to Educational Institution Use, this Section shall govern.

14.2 FERPA. Institution designates Copyleaks as a "School Official" with a "legitimate educational interest" in Institution's education records, within the meaning of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, 20 U.S.C. § 1232g, and its implementing regulations at 34 C.F.R. Part 99 ("FERPA"), solely to the extent Institution shares "personally identifiable information" or "education records" (as those terms are defined at 34 C.F.R. § 99.3) with Copyleaks in connection with the Services. Copyleaks shall (i) use and maintain such information only as set forth under the Agreement and in compliance with applicable law; and (ii) remain under Institution's direction with respect to the use and maintenance of such information. Institution's and Copyleaks' respective data processing, retention, deletion and security obligations with respect to such information are set forth in the Privacy Policy.

14.3 Academic Use Only. The Services may be used by Institution and its authorized End Users solely for legitimate academic purposes directly connected to coursework, research, or academic integrity review, conducted by or on behalf of the Institution identified in the applicable Order Form or MSA. End Users (including faculty, instructors, or administrators) are expressly prohibited from using the Services for any course, program, grading, or any other academic or non-academic purpose at any other institution that is not itself a party to a valid Order Form or MSA with Copyleaks.

14.4 Fair Use of the Services. Subscriptions based on Full Time Equivalent (FTE) are subject to fair use limitations. The total volume of pages submitted to the Services across the Institution must be reasonable and amount to fair use, calculated in the aggregate based on what can be reasonably expected from the number of End Users/ FTEs specified in the relevant Order Form.

"Fair Use" means an aggregate submission pool for the Institution of up to five hundred (500) pages (each page as defined in Section 8.1, or as otherwise specified in the applicable Order Form) for every licensed FTE/student per contract year (the "Fair Use Allowance").

Copyleaks may monitor the Institution's submission volume against its Fair Use Allowance. The institution is solely responsible for identifying and reporting to Copyleaks any documents it disputes should not count toward its Fair Use Allowance (e.g. missing reports, corrupt documents). If Copyleaks identifies a deviation from the Fair Use Allowance under this Section, Institution shall have thirty (30) days from Copyleaks' notice to identify and report any such disputed documents, absent a timely response, all submitted documents shall be deemed to count toward the Fair Use Allowance.

Should Copyleaks discover that the relation between the number of End User or FTEs stated in the Order Form or MSA and the number of pages submitted is abnormally high or exceeds the Fair Use Allowance, Institution is obligated to assist Copyleaks in finding the reason or source and help remedy the situation.

Sustained or unremedied deviation from the Fair Use Allowance may be treated as a material breach of the Agreement and may result, at Copyleaks' discretion and following reasonable notice and an opportunity to remedy (except where Copyleaks reasonably believes the situation requires more immediate action), in (i) a true-up invoice reflecting Institution's actual usage, (ii) adjustment of the license to a higher FTE tier, or (iii) suspension of the Services pending resolution.

The Fair Use Allowance in this Section 14.4 applies in addition to, and does not limit or replace, the Supported Formats requirements set forth in Section 11.

15. ACCESSIBILITY

Copyleaks strives to make its Services accessible to individuals with disabilities. The Services are in substantial conformance with the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) 2.2 Level AA, to the extent applicable. During the term of this Agreement, Copyleaks may use your name and refer to you as a customer of our Services, including truthfully displaying your name and logo as part of press releases, statements, promotional and other marketing materials related to the Services. We shall cease any use of your name or logo upon receipt of your written request.

16.2 Trademarks License. You hereby grant us a non-exclusive, non-transferable, royalty free, revocable, worldwide license to use and display your trademarks and brands ("Your Marks") for marketing purposes, only in connection with your use of the Services, in accordance with standard policies regarding use of Your Marks as may be provided by you. Except for the expressed license granted herein, you retain all ownership in and to Your Marks, along with all intellectual property rights associated with Your Marks.

17. TERM AND TERMINATION

17.1 Term. The Agreement shall be effective beginning when you (a) accept these Terms, (b) create an Account, (c) execute an Order Form or (d) access or otherwise use the Services, in each such case whichever occurs first, and shall continue until terminated in accordance with the terms of this Agreement. You will be charged for your subscription at the beginning of each billing cycle, according to the subscription plan chosen by you.

The term of a subscription purchased through the Site shall automatically renew for successive subscription terms of equal length, unless either party notifies the other party in writing of its intent not to renew the subscription term, not less than fourteen (14) days prior to the expiration of the then-current subscription Term. Upon renewal the payment method you provided to us will be automatically charged for the additional term as specified in the subscription plan and will only be refunded according to our refund policy below. Each Order Form shall be renewed according to the renewal process detailed in such Order Form.

17.2 Termination. The Agreement or any part of the Services may be suspended or terminated, effective immediately: (a) by Copyleaks, at any time and for any reason, at its sole discretion, provided that if you have a signed Order Form, Copyleaks' obligation to provide the Services for the term specified therein shall prevail over this subsection (a) to the extent of any conflict; (b) by either party, if the other party materially breaches this Agreement; (c) by either party, if it has become impractical or unfeasible for any legal or regulatory reason to use or to provide the Services; or (d) by either party, upon the other party's liquidation, commencement of dissolution proceedings, disposal of assets, failure to continue business, assignment for the benefit of creditors, or if such other party becomes the subject of a voluntary or involuntary bankruptcy or similar proceeding. Copyleaks shall take reasonable efforts to notify you prior to termination or suspension or immediately following such action. Copyleaks shall not be liable to you for damages of any sort resulting solely from terminating this Agreement in accordance with its terms.

If you purchased a subscription through the Site you can terminate it at any time through your account or by contacting our Customer Support team. Your subscription will be terminated at the end of your current subscription billing term, and you will not be charged after that time.

17.3 Modification and Termination. Notwithstanding the foregoing if Copyleaks reasonably believes that your use of any portion of the Services is likely to be enjoined by reason of a third party's claim of infringement, violation or misappropriation of its intellectual property rights then Copyleaks may, at its own expense: (i) procure for you the right to continue using the Services; (ii) replace the same with other software, services or other material of equivalent functions and efficiency that is not subject to an action of infringement; (iii) modify the applicable software, support services or other material so that there is no longer any infringement or breach, provided that such modification does not adversely affect the capabilities of the Services as set out herein.

17.4 Effect of Termination. Upon termination of the Services, your right to use the Services will immediately cease. All provisions of the Terms which by their nature should survive termination shall survive termination. All payments are completely non-refundable. If Copyleaks terminates and/or shut down (temporarily or permanently) parts or all of the Services, you will not receive any refund or partial refund for any charges already billed to your account. For the avoidance of doubt, upon termination Copyleaks may disable or terminate your account, and you may be unable to access your account or any content or files you have uploaded

17.5 Refunds. Refunds will only be provided if you have submitted a refund request, have not scanned any pages or used any Credits from your Account and submit such request within the first 10 days of the billing cycle. Payment processing fees will not be deducted from the original price if the refund request has been submitted within 24 hours of the payment date. The refund will only cover the most recent subscription cycle.

18. CONFIDENTIALITY

18.1 Confidentiality. Either party ("Receiving Party") agrees to hold all information provided by the other party ("Disclosing Party"), in either written or any electronic format, including, but not limited to, specifications, reports, requests for quotation or proposals, customer information or the like if such information is (i) designated in writing to be confidential or proprietary, or (ii) if given orally, is confirmed in writing as having been disclosed as confidential or proprietary within a reasonable time (not to exceed thirty (30) days) after the oral disclosure, or (iii) which information would, under the circumstances, appear to a reasonable person to be confidential or proprietary (such information, "Confidential Information"), in the strictest confidence. The Receiving Party will use at least the same degree of care to prevent the disclosure or unauthorized use of Confidential Information of the Disclosing Party as it uses with respect to its own highly valuable confidential and proprietary information, and in no event less than a reasonable degree of care that a reasonable person would use under similar circumstances.

18.3 Confidentiality Exemption. Notwithstanding the above, the obligations under this Section relating to Confidential Information shall not apply to information which (i) is known to the Receiving Party at the time of disclosure as evidenced by written contemporaneous records, (ii) has become publicly known and made generally available through no wrongful act of theReceiving Party, or (iii) has been rightfully received by the Receiving Party from a third party authorized to make such disclosure.

18.4 Compelled by Law. In the event the Receiving Party is required or compelled by law to disclose the Confidential Information, the Receiving Party shall give the Disclosing Party prior notice (where legally permissible) to allow it to seek protective or other court orders. Receiving Party shall only disclose the exact Confidential Information or portion thereof specifically requested by such law requirement.

18.5 Except for the confidentiality obligations under this Section, you shall be solely responsible for any content and other material that you submit, publish, transmit, or display on, through, or with our Services.
